

Maggie Fietz

Maggie Fietz began painting in acrylic and watercolour in 1992 after taking a workshop course “for fun” at the Buckhorn School of Fine Art. Since then, Maggie has continued to paint flowers and landscapes as often as she can within a busy life of family, many interests and paid employment as the CEO of Family Service Canada, a national voluntary organization. A Social Worker by profession, Maggie prefers to paint quiet landscapes, birds and flowers in their natural settings.

Although mostly self-taught, Maggie has taken weekend courses from various Ontario artists such as Susan Goold, Mary Nunn, Art Cunanan and Margaret Roseman. She studies with Quebec Artist, Rachel Lemire whenever possible. Her most successful landscapes are based on local scenes, painted on location or from her own reference photographs. Maggie's style combines strong colours with fine, detailed work.
